

Transition tips

Step 1: Start with the Hay-only Fast

Over the period of a few days slowly transition your pet into the temporary grass hay-only diet by reducing the amount of other foods and treats you give them. This will encourage them to eat more hay and drink a lot more water. After you see them doing this then continue transitioning them to the temporary grass-hay only diet.

While eating only grass hay for 2-3 days, as a temporary fast, your pet will eat a lot more hay and drink a lot more water.

Temporary grass-hay-only diet cleans out the digestive tract, increases urine volume and flushes the bladder. This temporary diet will also make transitioning to Sherwood pellets easier.

Step 2: Introduce Sherwood Pellets as a treat

(hand feed the Sherwood pellets for the first time - don't mix with or feed anything else)

After eating only hay for 3 days your pet will readily eat the more nutritious Sherwood hay-based pellets

Step 3: Hide some Sherwood pellets for them to find under some hay or in a cardboard box or other toy

Step 4: Feed them their new Sherwood pellets and hay like normal and notice how much more active and healthier and hoppier they are!
